“When I stepped aboard ASUKA III, I felt an immediate connection with natural elements such as wood and stone. The ship is a testament to its design team. It has a well-balanced exterior profile, with a large white funnel and NYK’s signature two red stripes. Larger than ASUKA II, the ship can use LNG power whenever it is available.

Japan’s culture and traditions are really evident in the interior design, with muted tones and much attention to detail, as in the kappo-style restaurant counter. It is made of a solid piece of wood — chosen in Japan and sent by cargo ship to the German shipyard for installation during outfitting. Another example is in the timeless Japanese art, and the connection with Kokuho (National Living Treasures), which I enjoyed immensely.”
